

I reflect that a great many good pieces of writing have come to my attention lately. Lengthy pieces that examine the acute crises that face the white race, the USA and western civilization.

I am polishing my own piece on why I plan to raise my family here. Here is a placeholder for a second one addressing the type of world Eddie will grow up in; there are actually some optimistic notes to be sounded.

Here are:

A relatively short but trenchant analysis of America's current crisis, by Franklin Graham

Cultural Marxism and the Birth of Modern Thought-Crime

Sexual Utopia in Power, by Roger Devlin